

THINKING CHILD NETWORK MEMBERSHIP

User terms

This agreement sets out the terms by which you agree to use the Thinking Child Network site.

These terms were last updated on 16 July 2015

Provision of service

The site is owned and operated by Sue Dixon of Thinking Child.

It is hosted and maintained by Platform Twenty Ltd of Great Shelford, Cambridgeshire CB22 5LX

Thinking Child is a registered Trademark

If you are accessing the site under your individual subscription arrangement.

Limited rights to use content

All material displayed on the sites ('content') belongs to Thinking Child.

You can retrieve and display the content on a computer screen, print individual pages on paper and store such pages in electronic form on disk (but not on any server or other storage device connected to an external network) for your own personal, educational, non-commercial purposes.

You may not (without prior written permission from Thinking Child):

- redistribute any of the content or supply it to other people (including by using it as part of any library, archive, intranet or similar service);
- remove the copyright or trade mark notice from any copies of content made under this agreement
- create a database in electronic or structured manual form by systematically downloading and storing all or any of the content;

It is expected that many of the ideas will be modified and adapted for sound pedagogical reasons and where word versions of the content have been made specifically available the user can modify to suit their context and children.

Thinking Child does not accept any liability for any loss of profits, loss of business or business opportunity, loss of goodwill or reputation, business interruption, loss or corruption of data or programs or any type of indirect or consequential loss whatsoever arising from your access to and use of the sites and/or of any purchase of the subscription services nor for its being unable to fulfil any particular order due to the non-availability of the subscription services.

No assurances are given that the pages of the sites are free from infection from computer viruses, although Thinking Child takes all reasonable steps to prevent such infection.

Privacy policy

The information that you provide about yourself to Thinking Child will only be used by Thinking Child in accordance with its privacy policy (see below). We will not sell your email to any other third party.

The terms: provision of all paid-for subscription services

You must provide Thinking Child with accurate and complete registration information.

On registration as an individual, you will choose a username and password ('ID'). It is your responsibility to update your profile if there are any changes to that information (including your email address) by emailing info@thinkingchild.org.uk

Each subscription is for the sole use of that person. Thinking Child reserves the right to monitor usage of the subscription services using your ID. In the event that unauthorised users are accessing any subscription service using your ID then, without prejudice to its other rights and remedies, Thinking Child reserves the right to charge you an amount equal to the charges which would have been payable had each unauthorised user subscribed for the subscription services themselves.

In the circumstances of a forgotten password email info@thinkingchild.org.uk when we will reset the account and notify you to set a new password.

If you believe there has been any breach of security such as the disclosure, theft or unauthorised use of your ID, you must notify Thinking Child immediately by emailing info@thinkingchild.org.uk.

If Thinking Child reasonably believes that your ID is being used in any way which is not permitted by this agreement, we reserves the right to suspend access rights immediately on giving notice to you and to block access from your ID until the issue has been resolved.

Thinking Child may terminate this agreement by giving notice to you if you are in breach of this agreement and in such case, is not obliged to refund you any fees.

Online order process and formation of contract

The contract between Thinking Child and you is made under the following technical steps

Individual Membership is granted immediately upon successful completion of the registration process and payment of the required fee – via secure PayPal terminal (a PayPal account isn't necessary)

Privacy policy

Information collected

It is necessary for Thinking Child to collect your personal information (including name, home and school address, email address, telephone number and job title) for the purposes of registering you as a user of the sites, to provide and administer the services, to inform you of suitable products and services offered by Thinking Child.

If your contact details change please amend details in the 'edit your details' section.

Data protection and disclosure

Thinking Child maintains registrations and endeavours to comply with all requirements of the UK Data Protection Act 1998 and any regulation created under it.

Thinking Child will not disclose any of your personal information to any other third party

Thinking Child security policy

No data transmission over the Internet can be guaranteed to be 100% secure. As a result, while Thinking Child strives to protect your personal information, we cannot ensure or warrant the security of any information you transmit to Thinking Child and you do so at your own risk.

For any other queries about these Terms and Conditions please email : info@thinkingchild.org.uk